EARNINGS VISIBILITY INTACT

Despite a bump in its earnings growth trend, we believe earnings will normalize in the following quarters. We continue to favor AWC for its 1) earnings visibility till FY19 2) attractive PER valuation of 10.9x FY18 earnings 3) well diversified earnings base. Thus, after introducing FY19 estimates, we are upgrading our call to BUY and are revising our fair value to RM1.26 from RM1.18 based on a sum of parts valuation due to the buildup of its cash holdings to RM66.9mil.

- AWC's 1QFY17 PAT was 23%YoY and 21.8%MoM at RM6.3m, representing 21% and 23% respectively of ours and consensus earnings forecast. The subdued earnings was driven by lower contribution from the environmental and engineering segments largely due to project delays and a one-off margin compression. We are confident earnings will catch up in the coming quarters as previously experienced in FY17.
- Going forward, the company's earnings growth will be supported by RM130m in new projects in Putraya, recognized over a period of 5 years. Order book visibility till FY19 remains buoyant, envisaged at RM634m (Facilities Management: RM403m; Engineering: RM136m and Environment: RM94m). We reckon its facilities management division will be the key earnings driver for AWC drawn from higher margin jobs and stringent cost control.
