A person or entity making a protected disclosure or report is commonly referred to as a "Whistleblower". The Whistleblower provides initial information related to a reasonable belief that an improper activity may occur, occurring and/or has occurred.

The Whistleblower who reports the Concerns in good faith is protected against retaliation, such as being dismissed or penalised by the Group. Retaliation, which violates this policy, is itself a reportable Concerns under this policy.

Such protection from retaliation, however, does not extend for any complicity in the matters that are the subject of the Concerns or any other ensuing investigation. If the Whistleblower is involved in the Concerns reported, the Group will nevertheless consider the circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, and the fact that the Whistleblower has reported the Concerns.

3. Confidentiality

Every effort will be made to treat the Whistleblower's identity with appropriate regard for confidentiality. The Group gives the assurance that it will not reveal the identity of the Whistleblower to any third party not involved in the investigation or prosecution of the matter. The only exception to this assurance relates to an overriding legal obligation to breach confidentiality.
