NexG Berhad has clarified that two individuals have resigned from their directorships within the group and no longer hold any authority or representation in the company or its subsidiaries.

KUALA LUMPUR: NexG Berhad has clarified that two individuals have resigned from their directorships within the group and no longer hold any authority or representation in the company or its subsidiaries.

The group said Datuk Ahmad Syahril Abdullah resigned as director of Datasonic Corp Sdn Bhd effective July 16, while Muhamad Fakhru Khir Abdul Samat resigned as director of NexG CSA Sdn Bhd effective Aug 15.

"Both individuals no longer hold any position, authority or representation within NexG, Datasonic, or any of the group's subsidiaries.

"Any business transactions, commitments or dealings with the group should only be conducted through its current authorised directors and officers," NexG said in a statement.

The group also urged stakeholders, partners and the public to verify any representation made in its name to avoid misrepresentation, noting that any actions by the two former directors would be deemed unauthorised.

NexG said it remains committed to high standards of corporate governance, transparency and accountability, and that its board and management continue to focus on strategic priorities and delivering sustainable long-term value to shareholders and stakeholders.
